Green Flow: the innovative new online waste management solution from Onet

Onet Cleaning & Services has launched Green Flow, an innovative online waste management solution, specially designed for on-site use by its cleaning technicians.

Building on its range of cleaning services, Onet has strengthened its position across the waste sector by allowing customers to incorporate Green Flow into their on-site cleaning services to streamline waste management and optimise recycling.

In practice, the use of mobile terminals, level sensors, bar codes and NFC chips allows on-site information to be sent to the application, which then compiles all relevant data.

Green Flow gives cleaning technicians and site managers a snapshot of detailed indicators covering every stage of the waste management process, enabling comprehensive control over waste treatment procedures.

"By encouraging waste sorting and improving reporting, Green Flow provides a platform for preventive action to foster a better approach among company employees," explains Alexandre Maltot, Waste and Environmental Services Manager at the Onet Services cluster. "The application helps to considerably improve end-cycle waste recovery and processing."

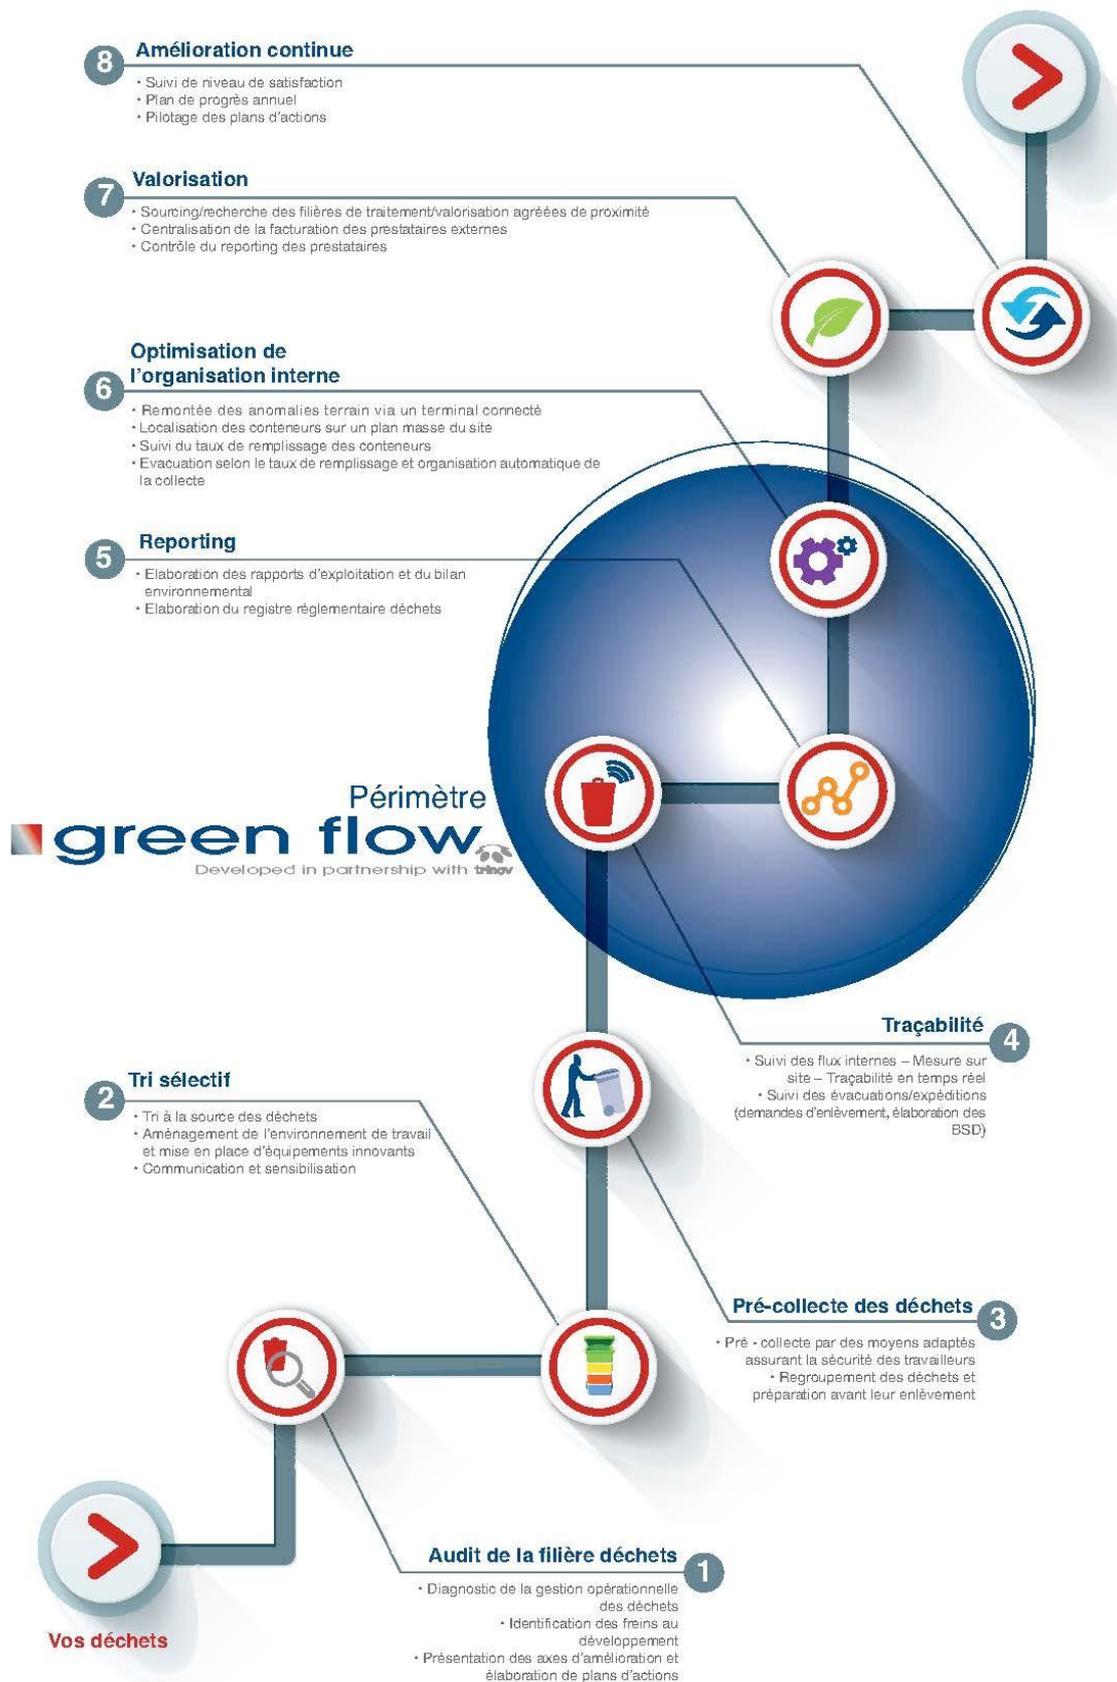

Adapted to all business sectors and types of waste, Green Flow is mainly of interest to industrial and commercial services sites, especially those committed to ISO 14001 standards and responsible development from a broader perspective.

The Court of Justice of the European Union (CJEU) in Luxembourg has already begun using the application as part of its responsible development campaign.
